

RED TRIANGLE MEN AT BATTLE'S FRONT

Oklmulgee Secretary Tells That
Y. M. C. A. Secretaries Played
In the Great War.

PARENTS HEAR DR. LAMBERT

Found Tulsa Boy in Thickest of Fighting and Buried Sergeant
From His Own Town

Before the largest audience that has attended the Sunday afternoon forums at the Y. M. C. A., an audience that included many mothers and fathers of soldiers in France, Dr. A. G. Lambert of Okmulgee, one of the best known oil producers and business men of Eastern Oklahoma, who left his home affairs to go to the front as a Y. M. C. A. secretary and was in some of the hardest fighting in which the Americans were engaged, told of the activities of the Y. M. C. A. on the battle front.

Nine secretaries were killed by shell fire, 31 by gas and 29 died in hospitals from exposure, he said, while 16 others were cited for gallantry in action. In the Argonne woods there were 700 secretaries and 10 women on the front lines, administering to the needs of the fighting men.

Doctor Lambert spent most of his time with the 89th and 90th divisions, the latter being composed of Oklahoma and Texas troops. On his arrival in France he asked to be sent at once to the front and for 25 days he was under shell fire. He told of the terrible effect of the barrage fire of the allies, which smothered the Germans in their dugouts. In the path of these barages it was found that the enemy abandoned everything in their retreat, an evidence that they were surprised and not expecting such terrific fire.

On going into action upon one occasion, he says, the officers told the men not to kill unless it was necessary to save the lives of their own men. In the same order they were commanded to kill any quitter among their own ranks who complained that it was too hot to go into battle when they were told to. This is the way officers are treated in the army in times of battle, he said.

In battle the speaker said he met many Oklahoma men whom he had previously known. Among them was Corporal Roseworth of Tulsa, who he said was a splendid soldier and a participant in much of the strenuous fighting during the last days of the war.

In searching for wounded Americans after one of the engagements he found in an old house in a dying condition Sergeant White, from his own town, wounded and alone. He remained with him until he died, watched over his body all night and the next day saw that he had proper burial. He was present at the burial of Sergeant Callum of Henrietta, who before losing his life captured two German machine guns.

Parents who have sons buried in France need not worry about the care of the graves of those soldiers, he told the mothers and fathers present. When the bodies are identified the graves are marked and the little French children keep them decorated with flowers.

Doctor Lambert's address was one of the most interesting talks on the war that has been heard at the forum. He spoke for an hour and a half and was given the closest attention.

Manufacturing Liquor Proves Costly

Two copper stills seized by county and government officials in the candy factory of Nicholas Colias, at Birmingham, Ala.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 2.—Nicholas Colias, Birmingham candy manufacturer, conceived and carried into execution the idea of converting machines, commonly used in the manufacture of extracts, into stills for the distillation of whiskey. When his operations were discovered by county and federal officials, two stills in his factory were producing daily about 150 gallons of whiskey apiece. This amount, valued at present "bootleg" prices, would make the daily output worth $12,000.

It is rumored that Mr. Colias had made as much as $200,000 at the time the stills were seized. Whiskey in the various stages of manufacture was found throughout the building stored on the third floor of the building was 7,500 gallons of malt. Under the Volstead law, a state enactment, the building is to be sold and the proceeds divided between the arresting officers, the state and county.

RED LEADER SAYS TREATY WITH ALLIES NOT TRUSTED

ARCHANGEL, Northern Russia, Saturday, March 1.—Governor Zinovieff of Petrograd, in a recent speech to the Petrograd soviet council explaining why the bolsheviks were willing to attend a conference on Princes Islands in the Sea of Marmora, to consider a compromise with the allied governments, declared that any treaty the bolsheviks made with the allied powers would be considered a scrap of paper. As quoted in the Northern Commune, the official organ of the Petrograd soviet, Zinovieff said:

"We are undertaking this move toward peace with a clear realization that in the course of time this peace will be profitable to us and not to our enemies."

Throughout his speech Zinovieff emphasized that the soviet leaders were not seeking peace with the allies because of the military situation which, in fact, he said, was good from the bolshevik point of view, but because the food situation was bad.

Walling to Attend Conference at the Capital for Mayor

F. G. Walling, a director of the Producers State bank, who is now in Washington, has been appointed to represent Mayor C. H. Hubbard at the conference of governors and mayors to be held in the east room of the white house today. Mr. Walling is now in Washington and the appointment was made by wire.

Mr. Walling was advised to report at the registration desk at the white house at 10 o'clock this morning. The officials at Washington were likewise advised of the appointment. Mayor Hubbard was forced to decline the invitation on account of the mass of municipal business which necessitates his presence in Tulsa.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 2.—The South Carolina general assembly adjourned after a session of 47 days on Monday night today.

GREEN RESIGNS RATHER THAN FIGHT FOR RATES

HOUSTON, Texas, March 2.—United States District Attorney John E. Green, Jr., Sunday telegraphed his resignation to President Wilson to take effect immediately. Mr. Green's decision to resign was prompted by his disinclination to cooperate with attorneys for the Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone company in the suit brought by the city of Houston to restrain the telephone company from enforcing certain local rates established by Postmaster General Hurlison.

The suit which is now in federal court has been set for a hearing by Judge Joe C. Hutchinson, Jr., for March 13.

Mr. Green's telegram of resignation was sent to President Wilson Sunday night following receipt of instructions from the attorney general to cooperate with the telephone company's attorneys in the prosecution of the suit against the city.

ST. LOUIS SALOONS PREPARE FOR CLOSE

Some of the 1,800 Proprietors Will Become Druggists—Old Southern Comfort Included.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 2.—The majority of the 2,000 saloon owners in Missouri are making time in the hope that congress will amend the national prohibition law so that manufacture and sale of beer will be permitted, according to representatives of the liquor dealers.

On the other hand, a large number of saloon men already have arranged to convert their places into moving picture theaters, restaurants, soft drink parlors, drug stores and mercantile establishments.

A few of the 1,800 proprietors of drinking places in St. Louis are licensed pharmacists and will become druggists; a few others will take up law and still others will devote all instead of part of their time, to politics.

A. J. Gloratti, proprietor of what is considered one of the most elaborate cafes in the west; John Cafferata, another widely known cafe owner, and George Melshelmer, whose cafe for years has been the gathering place of theatrical people, said they were undecided as to future plans, but expressed hope that "everything would turn out favorably."

Among well known places that will close July 1 is the one owned by M. W. Heron, internationally famous for its cordial "old southern comfort." The recipe was formulated by Heron more than 20 years ago and won first prize at the Paris exposition in 1889. In earlier days the drink, in a glass of rainbow colors, was served only by Heron, but in recent years he has permitted employees to dispense it.

Many rural saloons long have been considered "plague spots" of the state because of law violations. They have been the rendezvous of gay auto parties after the urban cafes closed.

Quite a few of the roadhouses have not had state licenses for more than 10 years, operating only on federal permits as "clubs." Several weeks before July 1, in the opinion of C. Norman Jones, secretary and treasurer of the St. Louis brewing association, several of the larger breweries have already gone "dry." Mr. Jones said he believed the others would exhaust their supplies by June 1.

Upholds Wire Control.
CHICAGO, March 2.—The right of the federal government to take control of the wire systems under the nation's war powers, even those companies in receivership, was upheld yesterday in an opinion delivered by the Illinois appellate court.

Beware of Mail Order Houses Which Advertise Auto Paints

The work which would ordinarily devolve upon him has fallen upon the shoulders of E. Bee Guthrie of Tulsa, financial secretary of the good roads association, who is looking after Singletary's work in addition to his own. The case of Singletary has aroused the sympathies of those in touch with the good roads to be launched by the legislature. Now, with the critical moment at hand, he is restrained from taking any part in the furtherance of the plans to which he has devoted so much of his time and his energy by the hand of fate.

The national vigilance committee, through co-operation of the postal authorities, obtained an agreement from a number of these mail order houses some months ago by which this deception was stopped.

Again, says the committee, one or more of these concerns have reacted to a similar scheme through sales letters very skillfully worded and designed to avoid interference by the postal authorities. They now state that the goods are in storage for the convenience of their customers, which is the same old scheme, camouflaged.

People get about what they pay for, suggests the vigilance committee, and should not expect more than that; and the owners of automobiles could not reasonably expect to obtain more for their money from such companies than from their regular dealers, who supply them right along and who do so without an effort to deceive them in any manner.

ROAD SECRETARY'S WIFE DEAD AT OKLAHOMA CITY

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 2.—While issues of the greatest moment to H. A. Singletary, manager of the Oklahoma good roads association, are being fought out on the floors of the legislature, Singletary has been spending all his time at the bedside of his wife who died today at her home here as a result of complications following an attack of influenza.

This case involves the most tragic features of the fight for good roads in Oklahoma. Singletary has been devoting all his energies for months to the good roads movement. His ambitions are bound up in the success of the movement, which is soon

WHO DOES the BUYING FOR YOUR FAMILY?

There is someone in your family who has a big responsibility.

Food to buy for the table; clothes for the children and grown-ups; new household utensils, linen, furniture, books and all the hundred and one things for which the family income is spent.

In most families, one person does the bulk of the buying. And it is that person's job to see that the money is well spent—that you all get full value for every cent that goes out.

The success of a family depends on wise buying just as the success of a business does.

Wise buying means intelligent buying. It is necessary to have knowledge of goods and stores.

The best way to get this knowledge is by reading advertisements. They tell you what is new and good. They tell you where and when to buy to advantage.

Not only the person who does the buying but every member of the family should read advertisements. It is the duty of all the others to help the one who does the buying by pointing out advertisements of new goods and giving all the information possible as to tastes and styles and values.

Advertisements are published for your benefit. Make use of them by reading them.
